FORM E

THIS IS FORM E.

MAJOR PART 1 handwriting/spelling Evidence-Based Practices

Teach the proper way to hold a pencil and write from left to right .
Help children pronounce, identify, and isolate phonemes correctly
Teach how to form each letter representing a phoneme step by step, showing the exact order and direction of the strokes.
Talk with children about how letters look—compare their shapes and the strokes used to write them.
Have children retrieve prior phoneme-grapheme knowledge and connect to new phoneme-grapheme patterns
Cue children to apply phoneme-grapheme patterns during activities
Provide corrective and confirmatory feedback explaining what part is incorrect and showing them how to fix it.
Encourage children to use what they've learned about sounds, spelling patterns, and word parts to try spelling new words—even if they're not sure (invented spelling).

MAJOR PART 2 Vocabulary & Sentence Structure Evidence-Based Practices

Evidence-Based Practice
Provide multiple opportunities for children to use vocabulary words from their unit or theme during sentence generation tasks
Encourage children to play with words by making connections, grouping them into categories, and exploring how they relate to the writing topic or unit theme.
Teach children connecting words like "because" for cause and effect and "also" to add ideas, helping them organize and link their thoughts clearly in writing.
Explicitly and systematically focus on one language structure at a time—like subject-verb clauses or prepositional phrases–to build sentence awareness
Support children’s sentence development by having them build, rearrange, combine, and expand sentences related to the writing topic or unit theme.
Connect vocabulary to sentence writing by having children use words from a unit theme in sentences related to the writing topic.
Prompt children to use specific vocabulary and sentence structures while they compose.

Major PART 3: Idea Generation and Organization Evidence Based Practices

Clearly explain the writing topic and its purpose, and identify key features of the genre that support that purpose.
Use visuals, read-alouds, and multimedia (like videos or photos) to help children learn about the unit topic, making it easier for them to talk and write about the topic.
Help children connect the writing topic to what they've read, learned in the unit, or experienced in real life.
Invite children to share their own experiences related to the topic—things they've seen, done, or talked about at school, home, or in their community.
Model the brainstorming process by thinking out loud. Show children how to come up with ideas by saying your thoughts as you connect the writing topic to personal experiences, knowledge, or related vocabulary
Have young children draw their ideas before writing. This helps them clarify what they want to say and supports their working memory when turning ideas into written words.
Use questions and prompts to help children expand their ideas, clarify their thinking, and revise their language before and during writing.
Encourage children to orally rehearse their ideas by saying their complete "crafted" sentence aloud before writing.
